COVID-19 UPDATES

Avoid Non-Emergency Services If Sick

Many organizations will ask you not to use any in-person services if you are sick. Symptoms to watch for include fever, cough, or shortness of breath. If you have tested positive for COVID-19, please do your best to isolate yourself and avoid in-person services to prevent spreading the illness to others.

Wear a Mask

Colorado regulations require clients to wear a cloth face covering or mask when indoors with people other than the members of your household.

Walk-In Appointments May Not Be Available

Many organizations are limiting the number of people inside their building, which means you may need to call ahead and schedule an appointment even with organizations that typically accept walk-ins.

COVID Procedures May Be in Place

Any organization offering in-person services may have procedures in place to prevent the spread of COVID. This may include questions about possible COVID symptoms, limited entrances and exits, social distancing, temperature checks, and staff escorts. If you answer “yes” to experiencing any COVID-like symptoms, you may be asked to leave and reschedule even if you have an existing appointment.
